Welcome to LFS Resource...

Those of you who have visited this site in the past will no doubt notice a few changes. We used to use vBulletin but have switched to Joomla which is far better suited to our file upload and download needs. Gallery (when implemented) will be the same as before, the forums are somewhat simpler. I really like VB but don't want to shell out for another license at the moment so this will suffice for now. It's functional and simple to use and is really all we need. :)

I have finished uploading my skins for the FZR, I will concentrate on uploading the other skins over the next couple of days. A couple of other skimmers had submitted skins too and I will be contacting them soon so that I can re-submit their skins with permission. ;)

All I ask is that you bear with us while we spin up the new site. There's a lot more work in it than you would think but the end result should speak for itself. If you have any suggestions, please, let's hear them. B)

Regards, ZED28

M8, I have a small problem. When I merge 6 spoke wheels set for FZR it become about 4 times bigger then it used to be. Scean is with default settings. I know I can scale wheels but I'm totaly new in 3ds and I need so much time for that.

Do me a favor and post these types of questions in the relevant forum. This post started off as just a welcome message.
:ohmy:

I'll reply to your post in the rendering section...

I assume you mean to view the skins in the game and not in 3D Studio?

If that's the case, the skins go in the C:\LFS\data\skins folder (replace C:\LFS with your path) and you apply them from within the game in the Garage area.

The wheels are only for rendering purposes - not for use in the game.
